Re: WACA is Growing!

The Wall And Ceiling Alliance (WACA) recently purchased a building located at 5690 Sonoma Drive in Pleasanton. The building is located next door to WACA's current office.

In October 2015 this opportunity to expand WACA's services and member benefits through additional operating and meeting space was presented to the board of directors. After considerable strategic analysis of current and future association needs, including the membership value of having a fixed meeting location, the directors approved the acquisition.

With the proven success of the current facility serving as an educational, training and meeting space, this additional building will expand the opportunities for membership, industry, WACA and our technical partners the Wall and Ceiling Bureau (WCB).

"We will be using the building for professional development, training and outreach to our members and partners to support industry advancement," said WACA's executive director Frank E. Nunes.

WACA and WCB will also offer this new facility as a meeting and gathering place for architectural associations and specification and code organizations.
